To Whom It May Concern,

It is with great enthusiasm that I submit my resume in consideration for a position as a Kindergarten teacher at the Fraser Valley School. I have lived and taught not only in Canada, but in Guatemala and Vietnam as well. My past experience as a teacher has mainly been focused on primary and pre-primary education, which is my true passion, and that is why I feel I would be qualified to teach and work at [Insert School/District].

I have recently just completed my teacher certification practicum in a kindergarten classroom and can truly say that working in primary is what I am most passionate about. There is something very special about working with young learners at the beginning of their learning journey as they have such an eagerness to explore, investigate, and make connections. Throughout my time abroad, I had my first opportunity to be a classroom Kindergarten teacher in Guatemala where I learned what it was like to have my own classroom, educate children in a space with little to no resources, and essentially how to be very creative in making content engaging.

I am a very charismatic and compassionate person who really enjoys creating and building connections with students, parents, and fellow staff. I am a very effective listener, I enjoy hearing feedback, and I aim to contribute positively to the school's goals and vision by engaging in collaborative teacher workspaces to ensure student success is seen as a school wide responsibility. With my experience and values, I am confident that I can contribute positively to the [Insert School Name] community.

I would really appreciate the opportunity to speak with you personally to discuss my application, along with my qualifications for this position. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Samantha N. Sipos
